The conference will cover all aspects of stroke care from: stroke prevention, acute stroke interventions, rehabilitation, nursing and allied health essentials, basic scientific and cutting edge systems and translational research, products and services including rehabilitation equipment plus much more.

ABSTRACT THEMES

We seek to showcase emerging stroke research including innovative clinical practice interventions to improve access to evidence-based care within the following major topic themes:

• Acute stroke including interventional research
• Basic science
• Community care and support
• Epidemiology and prevention including cohort studies
• Health services delivery and healthcare systems research including health economic evaluations and clinical quality registry research
• Nursing
• Rehabilitation and allied health innovations
• Imaging and other novel diagnostic innovations
• Research by New investigators (< than 5 years from completion of PhD or higher degree)

PRESENTATION TYPES

Stroke 2018 will offer submitters the choice of submitting for an oral free paper, oral poster and poster presentation.

ORAL FREE PAPER PRESENTATION

If your abstract is accepted as an oral presentation you will be allocated a place in the programme. You will be advised your allocated presentation time at the time of abstract acceptance notification.

ORAL POSTER PRESENTATION

If your abstract is accepted as an oral poster, you will be required to produce a poster that will be displayed in the poster display area. The dimensions of the poster boards are designed to fit an A0 portrait poster. Furthermore you will also be allocated a place in the programme for a short presentation to speak about your poster work.

POSTER PRESENTATION

If your abstract is accepted as a poster, you will be required to produce a poster that will be displayed in the poster display area. The dimensions of the poster boards are designed to fit an A0 portrait poster.

PUBLICATION INFORMATION

STROKE 2018 is delighted to be able to partner with the International Journal of Stroke to publish abstracts accepted by the Scientific Committee for the conference. It is important that your abstract is original work that will not be published in another peer-reviewed journal prior to the conference. Authors notified with the International Journal of Stroke to publish abstracts accepted by the Scientific Committee for the conference.
